LANDON, ROOSEVELT PLAN FOR FUTURE MEETINGS

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 4.—"Well, Governor, however this comes out we'll see more of each other—either you come to see me or I'll come to see you."

"I certainly shall, Mr. President."

"And Governor, don't work too hard. These campaigns are trying."

A heavy handshake and then words marked the termination of one of the most informal episodes in American political history. The meeting here in Des Moines between the President and the Governor of Iowa, the first of a series of meetings planned by the two men.

Both men were smiling. Both were evidently aware of the fact that the meeting was a historic one. The President, seated in a large chair, looked at the Governor, who stood before him.

"Oh, this is fine," the President said. "I am glad to see you. I have been thinking of you a great deal lately."

The President looked at the Governor. The Governor looked at the President. They both smiled.

Each session, each surrounded by his experts on drought and agricultural matters, and each found they did not differ greatly in their ideas of remedial treatment.

Candidate Roosevelt was fresh from a few days' swing through the dusty plains and prairie country of which Kansas is a part. He was fortified with voluminous data concerning the needs of Kansas in the emergency.

Candidate Landon came here directly fortified and equipped from having lived intimately with the problems day after day. In general these were agreements between them as to the broad general policy to be pursued.

RELAX AT DINNER
Lunchtime was pleasant enough with Governor Herring. Mr. Roosevelt looked the avid photographer, and several remarks to Governor Landon that they were one of the problems he would have to face when he became President.

The seven governors and the President had a difficult time agreeing into the tiny dining room of the Roosevelt private car, but they made it.

During dinner they "talked of everything," as one of them later described it. At college football, the outlook for peace or war in Europe, the only Spanish situation of humorous experiences that came to them in the course of their governorships.

"Barring current politics," one of the guests informed International News Service. "The conversation was the same as would be had between any table where seven or eight men gather for a social dinner."

"They talked at only one thing, these two rival candidates for the Presidency. They declined to pose shaking hands for the newspaper photographers."

Landon Pleased Over Talk With Roosevelt
By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 4.—Governor Alfred M. Landon left here early today for Topeka to resume his campaign for the Presidency after attending President Roosevelt's "non-political" dinner conference at Des Moines.

The Republican nominee spent the night at the home of his friend, William M. Clark, local business man.

Landon was highly pleased over his conference with the President. He had declined to discuss details of their climatic talk. It was learned the Republican nominee and his Democratic rival for the Presidency had agreed virtually upon details of a program for the relief of drought-stricken areas.

The Republican nominee left a message for Mr. Roosevelt, urging a federal aid program for the preservation of watersheds, the construction of reservoirs, the prevention of soil erosion and the reforestation of lands. He found the President thoroughly alive to the problems of drought-stricken areas and ready to proffer all available federal assistance to the thousands of needy farmers.

One result of the conference was the promise of the President to provide federal aid and food loans to farmers in the drought stricken areas. The seed loan have been started and food loans will be administered by the President's War Relocation Administration and the Rural Reconstruction Administration.

Lack Co-operation
Without aid and with lack of cooperation by Police Chief Cyril Barker at Topeka in connection with the investigation of injuries suffered by Louis Chesnut, of Topeka.

G. O. P. HOLDS LEAD IN STRAW VOTE

MASSACHUSETTS

Again in normally powerful Democratic districts, Republican candidates for United States senator and for governor in Massachusetts made strong showings during the 32nd day of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser straw ballot.

In Dorchester and Mattapan, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Republican candidate for the Senate, waged a 3 to 1 fight against Governor Curley, the Democrat, and John W. Haigis, Republican candidate for American, showed even stronger

PARENTS SEEK MISSING GIRL

Worried as the continued absence of their 15-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, Mr. and Mrs. William McCafferty, of Locust street, Roxbury, have appealed to police to locate the girl.

Mrs. McCafferty told police the girl had been in Northampton when she announced that she had married.

Checkup failed to disclose any record of the marriage, she said.

Four More Deaths In Auto Crashes

Four more deaths were added today to the mounting list of fatal auto accidents on Massachusetts highways.

Two persons, Thomas Fingert, 30, of Belmont street, West Roxbury, minister, and Mrs. Johanna Cronin, 40, wife of a former Warren, N. J., police chief, were killed in a triple crash on the Providence road in Northampton.

Bernard Manning, 40, was instantly killed in Northampton when his auto went off the road, landed over an embankment and hurtled upside down in a field.

Andrew Alves, 4, died at Hyannis Hospital of injuries suffered when he was struck by a truck in front of his home.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE :- By Beatrice Fairfax

Love Too Lightly Given Will Often Halt the Wedding March

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax—
I have just received your letter of the 28th inst. in which you ask me to advise you as to whether or not you should marry a man who has been married before. I am glad to hear that you are so thoughtful and considerate. I will try to give you the best advice I can.

First, I would like to know more about the man in question. How long has he been married before? Was the marriage a happy one? Did he have any children? These are all questions that you should ask before making a decision.

Second, I would like to know more about you. How old are you? What are your interests and hobbies? Do you have any friends or family who you can rely on? These are all questions that you should ask yourself before making a decision.

Third, I would like to know more about the situation. Why did the first marriage fail? Was it because of incompatibility? Was it because of financial difficulties? Was it because of other reasons? These are all questions that you should ask before making a decision.

Finally, I would like to know more about the future. Do you think you can live happily with this man? Do you think you can build a strong and lasting relationship with him? These are all questions that you should ask before making a decision.

I hope these suggestions will help you to make a wise decision. Remember, marriage is a serious matter and should not be taken lightly.

CHAPTER II
KATHERINE had voiced the only practical plan for keeping the man who was her husband.

She had said that she would stay with him, no matter what. She would be his wife and his friend. She would be his everything.

But now she was alone. Her husband had left her. He had said that he would stay with her, but he had not. He had gone away and she was left with nothing.

"I suppose I ought to be warned as soon as I possible," he said seriously.

"That troubles me not at all," he said. "I am not a father."

When she walked to Katherine, she was looking at her. She was looking at her with a look of surprise. She was looking at her with a look of admiration.

AMERICAN BUSINESS

RETAIL Sales GAIN

12 TO 18 P. C. HIGHER

New York, Sept. 4 (AP)—The fall turnover started in a number of trade branches during the week instead of waiting for Labor Day, Dun & Bradstreet said today in the weekly review of business.

Commerce buying turned down by summer goods, the agency said, "as the weather became cooler and rains brightened the outlook in dress goods."

Although few buyers were in the leading markets, wholesale volume was bolstered by orders, which reflected the general response to new merchandise.

Industrial operations, with few exceptions, were set in a higher gear, as Mr. Brantley said, "as the weather became cooler and rains brightened the outlook in dress goods."

Some of the gains reported a gain in retail sales for the week, the agency said, "as the weather became cooler and rains brightened the outlook in dress goods."

Sidelights Of Wall Street

New York, Sept. 4—The demand for air conditioning is influencing belief that the industry may furnish the necessary momentum to lift all branches of trade into a real industrial boom.

Some extremely favorable estimates are heard in speculative circles as to the potential earning power of concerns manufacturing and installing air conditioning equipment.

The argument is advanced that when the automobile and radio industries were in their infancy few anticipated the subsequent appreciable growth in earnings of such enterprises during the early development stages.

Of course many pioneers in the motor car and communication trades have since disappeared, either through dissipation or through competition by the industry's own growth.

WIDE Grants of POWER

AMERICAN GAS HEAD OBJECTS

By WILLIAM M. PINKERTON
Associated Press Staff Writer
Washington, Sept. 4 (AP)—The pooling of electric power, both government-owned and private, in regional systems under federal agencies was proposed today by Basil Manly, vice-chairman of the Federal Power Commission.

He said it was "the best solution of the numerous problems created by the development of large bodies of hydroelectric power as an incident to the construction of Federal public works projects."

Manly said that the American Gas and Electric Companies, which have been granted a wide range of power, are now in a position to pool their power with the Federal Power Commission.

Business Is Quiet AFTER Harvard PERISTENT BUYING

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The world of business and finance is to have its days at the Harvard Tercentenary along with arts and sciences. It is announced today that international leaders would address the Business School Alumni meetings on September 16 and 17.

The list of guest speakers released today includes such American authorities as W. L. Clayton of Houston, Texas, the world's leading oil merchant, and Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., chairman of the finance committee of United States Steel, and after referred to as one of the youngest major executives in this country.

Those chosen were: Hon. Paul Reynaud, former finance minister of France in the Tardieu cabinet, and now a member of the French Chamber of Deputies who is regarded as one of the most single minded industrialists in the world; Hon. J. G. D. Stettinius, Jr., chairman of the finance committee of United States Steel, and after referred to as one of the youngest major executives in this country.

The copper situation at present is probably one of the most interesting phases of the industrial market. Leading producers are working to prevent a price rise in price by increasing output. Nevertheless, the situation is not so simple as it seems. The copper situation is not so simple as it seems. The copper situation is not so simple as it seems.

Notwithstanding the fact that the copper situation is not so simple as it seems, the copper situation is not so simple as it seems. The copper situation is not so simple as it seems. The copper situation is not so simple as it seems.

While we may maintain our position, the copper situation is not so simple as it seems. The copper situation is not so simple as it seems. The copper situation is not so simple as it seems. The copper situation is not so simple as it seems.
